

Emma Marris

Author, "Rambunctious Garden"

Emma Marris is an environmental writer and reporter. Her book, Rambunctious Garden: Saving Nature in a Post-Wild World, highlights alternative conservation strategies that do not focus on holding or returning land to a historical baseline. From managed relocation of species threatened by climate change to the embrace of so-called novel ecosystems, she champions a blurring of the lines between nature and people, and a conscious and responsible management of our humanized planet. She grew up in Seattle, Washington, and now lives with her husband and two children in Columbia, Missouri.