

LIVAR FRØYLAND

Dr. Livar Frøyland, Director of Research at the Norwegian National Institute of Nutrition and Seafood Research (NIFES). He has his background within biology, physiology, clinical biochemistry and nutrition. In 1997 Frøyland was employed at NIFES, formerly Institute of Nutrition at the Directorate of Fisheries. Frøyland is also professor in Medicine (nutritional physiology) at Department of Biomedicine, and a lecturer in nutrition. Frøyland has been a member of the Panel on Nutrition, the Norwegian Scientific Committee for Food Safety (VKM), since it was established in its new model in 2004. He was a co-author of the Norwegian risk benefit report on seafood in 2006 and led the work on a risk-benefit report on omega-3 fatty acids 2011.