Dr. Ragnhild Overå is an associate professor in geography at the Department of Geography at the University of Bergen. She teaches courses on development, globalisation, political ecology and qualitative methodology. Her publications on small-scale fisheries in Ghana and Zambia focus on gender, entrepreneurship, market integration, poverty and natural resource governance. Her research also includes studies of gender relations in the informal economy, of the impact of ICT on rural-urban trade, and of local entrepreneurship in the oil and gas sector in Ghana.
